Tristel previews new sterilising wipes at NATN conference

In addition to exhibiting the full range of established Tristel sterilising solutions for endoscopy and other cold sterilisation applications, the Tristel Company will preview an exciting new product at this year's NATN meeting in Harrogate (7-9 October 2003).

New Tristel Sterilising Wipes are based on the same proven chlorine dioxide chemistry that is used in all Tristel solutions. They are intended for surface sterilisation.

Impregnated wipes are simply activated immediately before use by applying foam from a convenient, controlled dosage dispenser. The wipes will be demonstrated on the Tristel stand and will be available for purchase later this year.

Tristel sterilants, all of which are based on low concentration chlorine dioxide solutions, provide a safe, cost-effective alternative to aldehyde-based disinfectants. The range now includes products to suit every application: Tristel Multi-Shot for multiple decontamination procedures carried out over several days; Tristel One-Day which can be used continuously for up to 24 hours before discarding; Tristel Single-Use for one-time procedures in most leading makes of washer-disinfectors; and Tristel Hydro-Shot for the simple decontamination of washer-disinfectors. Full details will be available on the Tristel stand.
